

A message from Amy Ng:

One of my key goals as the worker of CTSS is to improve how we work together. By that, we work as a team in a community level and our larger team of partners (i.e. funders, social work professionals, allied health professionals, faith community leaders, etc) to support socio-health services in order to promote a quality health for people we serve.

In the last years, I made some progress and a foundation of transcultural support services in social and health sectors. This is anticipated to help make the impact of ethno-cultural community health development.
